SPIRITUALITY OF THE READINGS

Reading I: Isaiah 6:1-2a, 3-8
Responsorial Psalm 138:1-2, 2-3,
4-5, 7-8
Reading II: 1 Corinthians 15:1-11
or 15:3-8, 11
Gospel: Luke 5:1-11

Am I Worthy?

We are now well into Jesus' Galilean ministry, the one he began in Nazareth in Galilee.

This Sunday contains a surprise development. Sunday finds three of the greatest witnesses in the Bible—Isaiah, Paul and Peter—expressing their own worthlessness!

Well. What is your attitude toward worthiness? Do you agree with the current psychologized sentiment that, "I AM worthy," or "I'M ok, YOU'RE ok," or "I buy this product because I'M WORTH it"?

Let's look at Isaiah, Paul and Peter and see if they would utter such sentiments.

First, (First Reading), Isaiah receives a vision of heaven itself. The Lord is seated on a high and lofty throne and the Seraphim angel choir is crying out, "holy, holy, holy is the Lord of hosts! All the earth is filled with his glory!"*

But Isaiah reacts with shame! He says,

Woe is me, I am doomed! For I am a man of unclean lips, living among a people of unclean lips; yet my eyes have seen the King, the Lord of hosts!

In response an angel swoops down with a burning coal and begins to cleanse his lips!!!! He is doomed, alright, but doomed to be made clean through suffering, to be made able to speak of God.

Second, (Second Reading). St. Paul says that Christ appeared to him last of all, as to one born abnormally, "For I am the least of the apostles, not fit to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God." He is unworthy but did the grace of God discard him? No, it did not. It appointed him as an Apostle, even though he had never even met Jesus.

Third, Gospel. This week's famous story is where Jesus tells Peter James and John to fish in the deep water (where they had been fishing and fishing and fishing all night with no result). Without warning their nets become bloated with fishes. Peter cries out, "Depart from me, Lord, for I am a sinful man."

We have a problem here. Isn't the experience of God supposed to lead to peace, forgiveness, and joy instead of shame?

So, make a distinction. The reaction of all three figures is not really shame, which would mean concluding that every one of them is worthless. Instead they are finding their place in reality. They are expressing a kind of humility. How?

Each of these persons is forced to compare himself directly to the presence of God. But when people meet the holiness of God head-on, they become able to see humanness in in great relief, truly full of holes like a sponge. None of these—except Jesus—could pretend that he or she shone like the stars, since they saw the real star bursting with light. Jesus translated that light into human living.

Experience of God lets us understand that we are far, far less than God. This is not bad, it is good. Our own being cannot make us holy but God's can. We can be proud to be unworthy, if reception of God's love is the result.

So at Mass we echo the Roman centurion: "Lord I am not worthy that you should enter under my roof, but only say the word and my soul shall be healed." When we react with shame, God does not say in return, "I reject you," but "I love you dearly. Come be with me, you fine human being."

To this day, their creeds clash in the public square, houses of worship, and even our families. A Clash of Creeds is dramatically presented in their own words, and moderated by one of the 20th century's great wits and intellect, G.K. Chesterton. Get ready for great theater! SAINT OF THE WEEK & PARISH SCHOOL NOTES

Apollonia, Virgin and Martyr, died 249

St. Dionysius wrote an account of the heavy persecution of Christians by the pagan populace in the city of Alexandria in the last year of the reign of the Emperor Philip. An enraged mob killed several older Christians who would not blaspheme God or worship the false gods. Many other Christians fled the city, leaving all of their possessions behind rather than renounce their faith. St. Dionysius noted that he knew of none who yielded to the pressure.

Among the Christians martyred at this time was Apollonia, a deaconess. The pagans first beat her severely, knocking all of the teeth out of her head. Then, dragging her out of the city, they lit a great fire and threatened to throw her into it unless she blasphemed God. Apollonia asked for a moment's delay which, interpreted by the pagans as a sign that she was considering it, was granted. When she was freed, Apollonia threw herself onto the flames. While we, as Christians, believe it a sin to hasten one's own death, St. Augustine was of the opinion that Apollonia was guided by the Holy Spirit in her action.

St. Apollonia, the patron saint of dentists, is invoked against toothache and all dental diseases. In ancient art, she is often depicted holding a tooth in a pair of pincers or with a golden tooth hung from a necklace.

While this saint is no longer listed on the universal calendar of the Church, she is honored by dentists and others on February 9th.

Apollonia's message today: Standing up for one's faith is easy only if that faith is strong. Faith will remain strong only if we ask God to give us the strength we need to face the many obstacles and temptations which cross our paths.

✠ When times of trial occur in your life, do you turn first to God for help?
