SPIRITUALITY OF THE READINGS

Reading I: Acts 1:1-11
Responsorial Psalm 47:2-3, 6-7, 8-9
Reading II: Ephesians 1:17-23
or Hebrews 9:24-28; 10:19-23
Gospel: Luke 24:46-53

He Is Really Gone?

A while back I heard a homily that touched me. It might shed some light on the Ascension for you as well.

The school-year was ending. The University would soon be vacant. A school is like a small town (or in our case a large one), with patterns of life, friends, cohorts, revolving relationships, all in an irregularly regular rhythm of life.

The fabric of school life is like the cushion behind my back that is starting to come to pieces, disbursing its fillings abroad. School life and presence seems to do the same thing. It comes to pieces.

His Spirit was going to be within you and me, the fullest possible presence of Christ.

Our presider said with a beautiful poignancy how much he missed the students when they scattered. You could hear it in his voice: a network of life flew away each year. I can remember the same thing from my own college days. Empty halls and rooms; broad and unnaturally undisturbed yards of grass.

I think this is how the disciples felt, and especially the women who had loved Jesus so well. His suffering was the worst part, but then suddenly Jesus was alive again in their midst. He had truly died, and now he truly was back, with the real nail-holes still in his body. If you looked closely, though, or—just think of it—if you if you put your hand into his wounds as Thomas was invited to, you would have noticed that these wounds were somehow different. They had been burnished, had become beautiful, had been made lovely by love.

Jesus now was more real than before.

But he could not stay here as he probably wanted to. He had already traveled out of this world, through the narrow passageway of death. Out of sheer love he had given everything to the Father and now he was taking humanity with him to the heart of that dynamic, swirling, Trinitarian circle of love from which he had come in the first place. He had lingered after the Resurrection only in order to tell us about it, to comfort us, to ease the loss.

This is confusing. Which was it? Take us with him to the Trinity, or somehow let his presence stay with us after he went?

Both.

He told them to wait for “the promise of the Father” (Ascension, First Reading) rather than departing from Jerusalem. They were not going to be abandoned but were called. In a wonderful metaphor, Paul prays, “May the eyes of your hearts be enlightened, that you may know what is the hope that belongs to his call” (Ascension, Second Reading).

Do you understand how Jesus could leave them but still be with them? The Gospel from the Seventh Sunday* puts it in the following way, in Jesus’ words to God the Father:

I made known to them your name
and I will make it known, that the love with which you loved me
may be in them and I in them.

Jesus was to be within us. His Spirit was going to be within you and me, the fullest possible presence of Christ, the very love with which the Father loved Jesus!

How could this happen?

Answer: the Trinity. Because of the immense act of modest love that was the resurrection. Loss and absence turned into real loving presence. Our lives can now be a quiet immersion in the Trinitarian reality of Christ, which is the Holy Spirit.

SAINT OF THE WEEK & OUR PARISH SCHOOL

Brendan, Abbot, c. 484-577

Brendan is a very popular Irish saint about whom little is known outside of legend. He was probably born near Tralee in Kerry, Ireland. When he was six, he was sent to a monastic school in Tuam for his education. He was ordained in 512 by Bishop St. Erc.

Brendan founded many monasteries in Ireland. The most famous of these, Clonfort, was a center of missionary activity for many centuries. Some three thousand monks lived, worked, studied, and prayed there under his direction.

Brendan made many missionary journeys by small sailing boat (a curragh) around Ireland and to England, Scotland and Wales, but his most famous journey, lasting from five to seven years, was to the Land of Promise. His epic manuscript on this adventure, Navigatio Sancti Brendani Abbatis, was translated into many languages and was a best seller in Europe in the Middle Ages.

In this saga, Brendan described what may have been, in the middle of the 6th Century, a voyage to North America. While many people doubted this over the centuries, some modern scholars believe that Brendan was actually the first European to visit North America. In the 1970s, Tim Severin, an expert on exploration, followed the directions in Navigatio and sailed a hide covered curragh from Ireland to Newfoundland. His observations, documented in his book, The Brendan Voyage, (McGraw-Hill 1978) demonstrated the accuracy of Brendan's directions and the descriptions of the places he wrote about.

St. Brendan is a patron of sailors. The Irish celebrate his feast on May 16.

Brendan's message today: Brendan is one of those saints who, while fully dedicated to God, were also devoted to advancing the state of human knowledge. We often think that living a life for God, means shunning the ways of the world. Brendan proved otherwise by his love of exploration and ability to communicate with others through the tales of his adventures.

✠ Where do you most often find God in your everyday life? Where do you most see God's presence in the world?

Congratulations on Your Retirement!
